

Dr B. Essaid

Is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering at the University of Médéa, Algeria. He received his Bachelor's degree in 1999 and his Engineering degree in Electronics (Electronic Instrumentation) in 2004 from the University of Médéa.

He earned the Magister degree in Electronic Systems (Telecommunications) from the Military Polytechnic School, Algeria, in 2007, and the Ph.D. degree in Electronics from the University of Médéa in 2025.

His research interests include telecommunications, biomedical engineering, speech signal processing, cochlear implant stimulation, and embedded electronic systems. He has supervised numerous Master's theses and actively contributes to research and engineering education in Algeria.